Ricky and SarahEllen wanted an open adoption. When they first spoke to their child's birthmother, they felt an immediate connection. "It was an instant love for this expectant mom; tears, fear, hope, love, and so much more were expressed in just a five-minute phone call. Looking back, I think God knew we needed her and that she needed us. The love for her we had already, even with the possibility she could change her mind, was amazing."

When Ricky and SarahEllen received the call that their daughter's birthmother was in labor a month earlier than expected, they quickly loaded their car and headed to be by her side. Although a two week NICU stay would be required, Rosaline, as they named her, was delivered safe and healthy. Rosaline's birthmother wanted Ricky and SarahEllen, her parents, to be the first to hold her for which they are so grateful. They spent the next couple of weeks getting to know Rosaline and cultivating a relationship with her birthmother.

Ricky and SarahEllen continue to share an open adoption with Rosaline's birthmother and share photos and texts with her often.

"God taught us that we were meant to be parents, just not in the way we had originally planned. Rosaline didn't grow under my heart, but in it and we love her regardless of DNA. She is our joy and our life; our precious gift from a woman who put her child first. God is Good."

Adoption

Families are able to pursue adoption of Domestic, International, and Special Needs children. Home studies and post-placement services are provided by licensed social workers. Birth parent counseling and other services are available throughout the very difficult and emotional process.

They provide information on childbirth and labor, finding baby items, providing babies with a safe and nurturing environment, support for parents to help children develop optimally during the crucial early years of life and more.

A WV Impact Success Story

"When I first met Tiffany, she was going through a difficult time. She had just had her fifth child which would be the first one in which she would retain custody. She was having trouble maintaining a job due to various circumstances. Fast forward to the present, she is the manager of a Dollar General and has moved into her own apartment. She also has become a great mom and even recognized needing help with a safe sleep environment for her baby! She took initiative and enrolled in some parenting courses through a pregnancy resource center. Tiffany is not afraid to ask for help when she needs it and has come so far in the past six months that I have known her!"

“When I walked into this house I was lost, broken, afraid and nowhere near ready to open up to anyone. I did and said everything I thought the stay here wanted me to do and say. Not only did I lie to them on a regular basis, I was lying to myself. I felt that as long as I agreed to come into this program, I could get my kids back. I thought I would come here long enough to accomplish that and then get back to my life. I was still very much in denial. I didn’t think I needed this program.

Things changed when I met my recovery coach. She made me take ownership for my actions for the first time in my life. Her exact words to me were “I will help you as long as you are honest with me”. To her, I want to say thank you! Thank you for being what helped save me, what finally made me open my eyes. Thank you for knowing all of the evil things I have done and never once judging me for them. Thank you for sticking by my side and guiding me in my recovery. Thank you for taking the time to truly get to know me and for always letting me vent to you. Thank you for always making sure I stayed on the right track. For always being in my corner and always being there when I need you. I could never have asked for a better recovery coach. You have taught me so much and I can’t begin to tell you how grateful I am to you, how much I appreciate you and how huge of a role you have played in my journey. I honestly don’t believe I would have made it to where I am today had you not came into my life. Thank you a million times over.”

I do not see the people that are served by Burlington as numbers, but as my neighbors, families in my community, in my State, families who struggle without the work of Burlington. I see the faces of so many children and families who now know hope, life skills, peace because of their time with Burlington. Because of Burlington, my eyes have been opened to how much we need to work together to provide hope!"*
